Ways of participation

Case 1. Participation in Person with a Paper

The true aim of the Conference is to get as much as possible participants in person, with their papers. This will provide them a chance to present their works, to ask and answer questions, to directly address to all others, exchange ideas and experience etc. This participation, however relates to certain natural costs. More in section "Transportation, Accommodation and Fees".

Case 2. In absentia

This means that an author can participate by just sending a paper.

In such a case, the paper will be reviewed. The paper's resume will be published in the Abstract proceedings and the full article in the MEST Journal.

The authors will have no financial obligation with respect to the Organizers of the Conference (no fee for participation and the like), but neither will have the privileges acquired by participants with a paid registration fee.

Case 3. Participation in Person without a Paper

One can participate in person, without paper, just attending the Conference, taking part in discussion, getting collection of papers and the like. This type of participation in the conference gives the participants the same rights and obligations as in the case of the personal participation of the authors presenting their works, case 1, so this category of participants is also subject to payment of registration fees.
